FOUND CORPSE IN LAKE

Body of Man who Disappeared
April 13 Found Floating in Waukegan Harbor

BELIEVED TO BE SUICIDE

Had Become Despondent Over Losing a Good Situation at Wire Mills—Leaves a Wife and Four Small Children

That George Thornborough, 35 years old, 811 Market street, Waukegan, who mysteriously disappeared on Wednesday evening, April 13, committed suicide by drowning himself in Lake Michigan, was proved beyond a doubt Monday morning when his dead body was found floating in the lake about a hundred feet east of the breakwater. Light-house keeper William Larson was the first to see the body.

Mr. Larson is relieved at 7:30 in the morning. He saw the "floater" in the lake as soon as he stepped outside of the light house. At that time the body was inside the harbor. He notified the authorities but when they arrived the lake currents had carried the body past the breakwater. Harbor Master Nick Larsen, Lighthouse Keeper Larsen and Assistant Chief of Police Tyrrell stepped into Mr. Larson's gasoline launch and soon were headed for the open water.

When found, the body of the lake victim was nearly submerged, merely the head being visible. A line was attached to it and the work of towing it to shore was started. Arriving at the beach the Larson and Conrad dead wagon was summoned and the body was removed to the Larson and Conrad undertaking rooms. Considering the fact that it had been in the water so long the body was in a fair state of preservation.

It fell to the lot of Assistant Chief Tyrrell and a Mrs. Mehan to break the news to the wife and family of the victim. Mrs. Thornborough was getting breakfast for her little family of four children, all of the tender years, when the news was broken to her.

The moment she saw the faces of Mr. Tyrrell and Mehan at the door, she knew intuitively what their mission was. With blanched face she listened as they told her of the finding of her husband. Then with a wail she collapsed and wept bitterly. She refused to be comforted and to add to the heartrending scene her little children gathered around her and plucking at her dress joined in her grief. Mr. Tyrrell has witnessed many harrowing scenes but never before was he so affected.

For a long time Thornborough had employed as engineer at the American Steel and Wire Company, where he drew good wages. Then for some reason he lost his position and was given odd jobs about the yards where his salary amounted to but $1.25 a day.

This nearly broke his heart and for months he brooded over the matter, despite the efforts of his wife to console him. The thing preyed upon his mind so much that it is said to have partially removed his reason. He could think of nothing else. His wife worried much over the matter and when he disappeared the thought that he had committed suicide was the first thing that entered her mind.

She went to the police with her pitiful story and soon enlisted their sympathies. She said that when he left home he had but ten cents in his pocket. This together with what he had said to her on the subject inclined her to believe that he had taken his own life although she would not admit it, the belief is that he threatened to drown himself in the lake.

Acting on this supposition the police gave orders to have the lake dragged. This was done but without avail. Reports of the man's disappearance were sent to the Chicago police in an effort to locate him, but without result.

That Thornborough had planned his death very carefully and had made up his mind at least a day or two before hand, came out Monday.

On the Wednesday night that he disappeared he went with his wife to the grocery store where they had been trading, handing his wife his check with which to settle the account.

"That's the last check you will get from me," he said as he handed it to her. At the time she thought little of the matter as he had made similar threats before. He left her soon after it was the last time she ever saw him.

DEATH OF JOSEPH KIEFER

Well Known Man Passed Away After an Illness of Many Months.

Friday evening, at ten o'clock at his home on Lake street occurred the death of Joseph W. Kiefer, a well known resident of this community. His death was the culmination of a painful illness of long duration, his malady being tuberculosis of the lungs. For a long time he had been in failing health and for the past six months has been confined to his bed. All through the long months of his illness he was a great sufferer but bore his lot with unlimited patience and without complaint.

The deceased was born at St. Louis, Mo., on the eighth day of September, 1891 and passed away at Antioch on the sixth day of May 1910, being forty-eight years, five months and eighteen days at the time of his death.

Eight years ago he located in Lake County and six years ago was united in marriage to Miss Blanche Wilton, who survives him. He was a kind and loving husband and a man who made a large number of friends who will greatly miss his presence and sincerely mourn his death.

The funeral services were held at St. Peter's church Monday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. Father Lynch officiating. The services were attended by a large concourse of friends and the many beautiful floral offerings were silent tokens of the high respect in which the departed was held by all who knew him. The remains were laid at rest in the Fox Lake cemetery.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. H. P. Avildson, of Benicia, Cal.; Mrs. Jas. Gerred of Libertyville; Mr. C. E. Wilton of Bostwick, Neb.; and Mr. Wm. Heal of Tamora, Neb.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to express my heartfelt thanks to the kind friends who gave assistance during the sickness and death of my late husband, and also to the singers and those that contributed flowers.

Mrs. Blanche Kiefer.

WOULD ASK BIDS FOR AUDITING

Supervisors Blackler and Clark have signified their intention of retaining Young & Company of Chicago to audit books of the county officers for a stipulated price of $4,000, the audit to cover a period of ten years. Supervisor Graham, third member of the committee, insists other firms of auditors be allowed to bid on the work and has consulted with several, securing figures a great deal lower than Mr. Blackler got from Young & Company.

It is pointed out by Supervisor Graham that Mr. Young of Young & Company is a neighbor of Supervisor Blackler, both living in Lake Forest, and he feels there is favoritism being shown at the expense of the country. He declared today that he would attempt to have bids submitted for the work and in event the lowest bidder was not the choice of the majority of the committee he would circulate petition for sufficient signers to call a special meeting of the board and lay the matter before the supervisors.

BOY HORSE THIEF CAPTURED AT WINTHROP HARBOR

Louis Puchaver was arrested at Winthrop Harbor Friday afternoon charged with the theft of a grocery delivery wagon and horse belonging to Sam Gans, a grocer at 3301 North Marshfield avenue, Chicago. Dressed as a cow-boy, with a red handkerchief about his neck, young Puchaver attempted to sell the horse to Emil Cekert, a trustee of the village of Winthrop Harbor. Cekert became suspicious when the $200 horse was offered to him for $80 and brought the boy under arrest to Waukegan.

The youngster, who gave his age as 14 years, was kept in the county jail all night and officials of the village of Winthrop Harbor sought to get trace of relatives in Chicago.

The boy was driving the horse through Zion and at the north limits, unhitched the animal and left the rig on the roadside. He then caught a ride with a Zion farmer and went on toward Winthrop Harbor. There he went into the blacksmith shop where Cekert and others talked to him, and, finding he was willing to sell the horse so cheaply, he was arrested.

Saturday afternoon Detective W. J. O'Brien and the boy's uncle came to Waukegan and matters were fixed up with the owner of the horse whereby the boy is not to be prosecuted. He was accordingly turned over to the men and taken back to Chicago.

TO HAVE AN AUTO FACTORY

Waukegan Is Negotiating for the Austin Automobile
Manufactory

$75,000 STOCK NOW SOLD

Rapids, Mich., Tuesday to Inspect
Plant and Examine Books

Waukegan sent a committee of fifteen representative business and professional men to Grand Rapids, Mich., Tuesday to make an investigation of the Austin Automobile company whose plant it is believed will be located at Waukegan in the near future. The committee was made up of the following men:

Mayor Fred Buck, Theodore H. Durst, M. H. Hussey, William J. Smith, Geo. Cherington, Sam Schwartz, Robert J. Erskine, Charles Watrous, Charles Bairstow, J. K. Orvis, J. H. Arthur, William Wright, W. B. Smith, H. H. Beach, L. P. Erskin.

The majority of the men who went from Waukegan went to Chicago in the afternoon and took supper at the Briggs House on Fifth avenue. Many of them attended the theater in the evening after which they took the train for the Michigan city. Their births in the Pullman had been reserved in advance.

The large committee that attended shows the keen interest that Waukegan business and professional men feel in the coming of the new factory. The majority of them have subscribed for large blocks of stock in the company and naturally they are interested in the auditing of the company's books.

The personell of the committee is such that Waukegan investors will have not the slightest hesitation in taking their word implicitly when they return and make their report. The selling of the necessary $75,000 worth of stock completed Waukegan's part in the bargain—now it is up to the Austin people to show the committee that everything is as it has been represented. If it is found that there were any misrepresentations the committee will so report and all negotiations will be declared off.

The telegram from the Austin people asking when the local committee would arrive there shows that they are prepared to entertain them in the best possible manner. They will be escorted about Grand Rapids in Austin autos, will be allowed to see how perfectly the machines work under all conditions and will have the books of the company turned over for inspection. Thus the committee will have every chance to make a detailed report when it returns.

OLD FASHIONED HOE-DOWN A SUCCESS

Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Huber entertained a number of their friends very pleasantly at an "Old Fashioned Hoe-down in Huber's hall. The invitations requested the guests to appear in costumes forty years behind the times and although they did not all respond to this request there were enough who did so to help carry out the old fashioned idea to quite an extent.

The music was furnished by R. M. Haynes, who seated upon a table with the "fiddle" tucked under his chin played the catchy airs of earlier days. Sol. LaPlant also lent his assistance to the occasion and mounting a chair, made himself famous by the ease and accuracy with which he "called off."

The lanterns which shed their mellow light from above, the lone violin furnishing music, the old fashioned costumes, and the absence of a waxed floor all combined to make the scene a good imitation of one of former days. The ball opened with the grand march at nine o'clock after which the Virginia Reel, Old Dan Tucker, quadrills etc., were indulged in until midnight when an old fashioned lunch was served in the old fashioned way.

About one o'clock the merry throng dispersed each one declaring that they had enjoyed a real old fashioned good time and that the occasion was one that would not soon be forgotten by any one who enjoyed the privilege of being present.

BARBER SHOP ROBBED

The Barber Shop of August
Abrahams in Waukegan
Is Looted

CUTS HAND WITH RAZOR

Indications are that an Organized Gang is Working Waukegan, Judging from Many Recent Robberies

According to appearances Waukegan is in the grip of an organized gang of crooks who are systematically conducting a series of robberies. Two robberies and one attempted robbery have been made within the past few days.

The latest robbery occurred Tuesday evening when robbers entered the barber shop conducted by August Abrahams, in the basement of the Buck building and got away with the following: Seven razors, one slot machine and a quantity of cigars.

The robbery was discovered Wednesday morning when the barber shop was opened. The interior was in considerable confusion. An investigation showed that a robbery had been committed and it is possible that a further investigation may show that other articles were taken. Just how many cigars were taken is not known.

The police have been notified of the matter but as yet have received no clue to the identity of the robbers. Ingress to the shop was gained by forcing a door. This is the second time that the same shop has been robbed inside of a year, the first robbery being made at the time the police department was laid off for 24 hours.

It is the belief that the robbers tried to force open the slot machine, but fearing to make too much noise, decided to carry the machine away with them so that they might open it at their leisure. It did not contain much money.

The arrest of the man who claimed his name was Thomas Kelly, alias Chase, arrested while attempting to break into the Pope home a few nights before may lead to the apprehension of the gang. The police will sweat him and hope to be able to wring a confession from him.

The repeated robberies have keyed the police to a high pitch and they hope to be able to show results in a few days. In an attempt to break open the slot machine with a razor the instrument was broken and one of the robbers cut his hand quite severely. Splashes of blood were found on the show case and on the floor. The fellow was equal to the occasion, however, for he opened the show case and took out a bottle of liquid court plaster, applying it to the cut.

DOCTOR ASKS $50 FOR TREATMENT OF SORE THUMB

A jury in Wauconda Friday decided that it isn't worth $50 to take care of a sore thumb.

Just $14 is the amount the jury believes is the proper amount.

It was in the case of D. Fuller vs. Thad Seymour, a well known young man of the village who, some time ago, injured his thumb. The doctor attended him and later sent a bill for $50 for his services.

Seymour refused to pay the amount, declaring it was excessive. The doctor sued him.

In court, through E. V. Orvis, Seymour made a tender of $25 for the services but the doctor refused to accept and then, imagine the astonishment of the doctor when the jury returned a verdict for him of only $14 after the $25 had been tendered. Thus, the jury showed it felt that about $14 is all it is really worth to take care of an ordinary sore thumb.

Something to Be Thankful For.
It's pretty tough to be poor, not to use a stronger expression; but when one reads of the many accidents by land and sea in which so many are sent to sudden death a man ought to feel thankful sometimes that he is out in the country pulling the bell line over old Balaam—Sylvania Telephone.

A CAR SMASHES AUTO

George F. Goodnow of Waukegan Receives Serious Injuries

George F. Goodnow, 537 North Genesee street, Waukegan, director and local manager of the North Shore Consolidated Gas company, is lying at his home in an extremely precarious condition as the result of a street car accident that practically demolished his large touring car Sunday morning. Mr. Goodnow was unconscious when picked up. Mrs. Goodnow in a statement to the press blamed the street car company for the accident. She said the car approached at a high rate of speed without making any signal or warning.

That Mr. Goodnow was seriously injured is shown by the fact that a physician, an out of town man who was visiting the family at the time, is in attendance constantly.

"Mr. Goodnow was unconscious when picked up and is very seriously injured, just how bad I am not prepared to say just now," was the only statement that Mrs. Goodnow would make with regard to her husband's condition.

Mr. Goodnow was seated in the automobile, backing it down an incline from the barn near the corner of County and Corey avenue when the accident occurred. Evidently he did not notice the approach of the car and backed his car upon the tracks. A moment later it was struck squarely by the car. The concussion hurled Mr. Goodnow from his seat to the street where the force of the shock caused him to lose consciousness.

The car was stopped and the trainmen went to the assistance of the injured man and he was carried into his home.

Fortunately a physician was on hand to attend him. Mr. Goodnow's car was a $2,000 White Steamer, and is a wreck.

LINDQUIST CASE AGAIN UP IN CIRCUIT COURT

The famous Lindquist vs. Vidvard case is being heard in circuit court before Judge Donnelly. The case has been up several times but it is believed that a settlement will be arrived at this time. There are many interesting issues to the case.

Ben Lindquist claims that both he and Mrs. Grace G. Vidvard, both of whom reside in Chicago, purchased lots on the shore of Fox Lake a few years ago. Summer homes were built upon them. Since that time he claims that Mrs. Vidvard has purchased all of the lots surrounding his lot and he has no way of getting from his property to the road without crossing the Vidvard property which has been prohibited. There is no driveway and the only outlet is the lake. To drive through this is out of the question. It is said that an injunction was issued some time ago restraining him from crossing the Vidvard property which is separated from his by a fence.

He claims that at the time he purchased his lot that he was shown a rough drawing of a plat, unrecorded it is alleged, that showed a roadway running back of his lot. Attorneys for Mrs. Vidvard seek to show that the so-called plat was merely drawn upon a piece of wrapping paper and that it was never filed for record.

Lindquist is seeking to have his deed re-formed so that he may have access to the street. This driveway would have to be through the Vidvard property.

FORTUNE HUNTER STUNG

Press Agent of the Play "The Fortune Hunter," Fails to Pull off Stunt

THE "HEIRESS" STILL SAFE

Chicago Press Agent, However, Induces
the Waukegan Gazette to "Help Him
Do What He Failed to Do Here

Last week Antioch was visited by a very clever press agent who claimed to be in the employ of the "Fortune Hunter Company" of Chicago. Desiring to get up some new and novel stunt to boom the play, he finally conceived the idea of going to some country village and enacting the play in real life, by striking up a flirtation with some young lady, and then allowing himself to be driven out of town by a suspecting editor, who would reap a rich reward of glory for the act, and all the while the thread of the play was to be closely followed in the minor details.

Antioch was the scene selected for the carrying out of the plot, but when the young man who gave the name of Kennedy, arrived in town and after securing the names of some of our best known young ladies, presented a letter of introduction to a well known matron, and later proceeded to interview a few individuals whose assistance was necessary for the carrying out of the scheme he found that they didn't "bite" and that Antioch was not as much of a "back woods" place as it might look.

After spending a few days here and satisfying himself that Antioch wasn't particularly in need of any excitement he paid up his bill at the Simons house and left town.

However we notice an article on page three of Wednesday's issue of the Waukegan Gazette which states that Lake County is said to be agog over the exposure of a William Kennedy, who is said to have made a confession that he was tired of trying to make a living as a clerk and that he had come to Lake County for the sole purpose of winning a country heiress as his wife etc., and gave the place of the occurrence as "near Antioch." Claiming that the young lady's real name is withheld by request, a fictitious name appears in the Gazette article.

All this may be a very clever scheme but we Antiochians didn't "bite" and consequently a prominent young lady may have been spared an unpleasant experience to say the least as the affair was destined to have appeared, with frills, in the Chicago papers.

Do You Favor the Tuberculin Test?

On account of there being so much agitation in regard to the "Tuberculin Testing of Cattle," and as the joint committee appointed by the last legislature, for the purpose of investigation, are holding meetings from time to time to receive information on the subject, and as the impression seems to have gone abroad that the farmers in general are in favor of this test, why would it not be well for the farmers in this vicinity to make known their opinion. An expression direct from the farmer is desired and will undoubtedly bear some weight with the report of the committee. Please fill out and sign the coupon below voicing your opinion by a yes or no vote, marking your choice by a cross on the line opposite, then mail or bring to this office and the result will be forwarded to aforesaid committee. Those who do not receive a copy of the News may procure a copy by calling at this office. If you wish to hand this coupon to a neighbor you may do so, as it will appear in next week's issue also.

SYNOPSIS.

Basil Tempest, world's greatest poet and novelist, refusing further to be flattered, shuts himself up in Craven, his country home. His gloomy meditations are broken by the admission of an American, Lucy Carew, who has come to England to get a study of the author, but more especially a synopsis of his new suite of poems. Tempest, angry at being disturbed, declares he will write no more and rudely asks her to go. Repenting of his rudeness he apologizes and offers to dictate to Lucy, who sits spellbound as she writes. Tempest induces Lucy to remain and read her manuscript to him. Their interest in one another grows. Tempest burns the photographs and letters of Lady Ormond, with whom his name has been associated. He takes great pleasure in Lucy's presence, as their work progresses. Tempest tells his housekeeper that he is going blind and that the association with Lucy must cease, that she must tell her to go for her own good. The housekeeper tells Lucy and pleads with her not to leave him alone. Tempest sends Lucy the suite of poems.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Miss Carew wore now cheeks that rivalled any red in her wardrobe. "Ah, yes," nodded her ladyship with a sort of satisfaction that had no ring of pleasure in it. They stood looking at each other through the mist that flew about their charming forms in little gusts of broken clouds, the dampness softening their tint and crisping the ends of Lucy's hair.

"You will find the castle open, I daresay," Lady Ormond gave a cool laugh. "I did not! and yet I am an habitué!"

"Ask Mr. Tempest to show you the empire room—it's a bijou," she said, maliciously.

As the American's dignity impressed itself upon the Englishwoman by her silence, her maidenliness, by her mounting color, and her angry yet unashamed eyes, with a keen penetration fitting Tempest's enigmatical remark to the lady:

"Tell me—your name is Lucy?"

"Why do you ask?"

Lady Ormond shrugged. "I am Lady Ormond," she said as if to complete the introduction, "a very old friend of Mr. Tempest's, and he has spoken to me of you."

The words did their work. Lady Ormond saw that the blow she dealt told.

"Good-by," she nodded, maliciously, "there's the horn," and so it was, faint and far away. She touched her horse and rode into the mist, leaving Lucy Carew trembling like a leaf, for the first time in her relations with Tempest and Craven humiliated and ashamed.

She went on, mechanically conscious of having been dealt a suffering wound.

He had spoken to this woman of her—calling her name to her! Oh, what had she been doing! how mad and fatuous and foolish she had been! She would have turned then and fled, if the fog had not lifted, as it does absolutely for a second, and the great mass of Craven risen before her. She shuddered at it; for the first a momentary distaste, a sickening jealousy, displaced all the feelings of the past hours. The prints of Lady Ormond's horse's feet were on the damp earth up to the very terrace steps; as for herself, she was a plover—a second best. No, she could not bear it—it was too humiliating! Even part of Tempest had displaced the tender memories of his youth to humor the caprice of this woman. What part did Lady Ormond now play in his life?

The castle was silent. Before her gleamed the large door, its highly-polished surface blurred here and there by the mist that lay in little, pearly lines along the carving. Lady Ormond's hand had first touched the knocker, or else the great door had just opened to let her go victoriously forth.

To Lucy Carew her own behavior appeared now in all its rash unbecomingly. She saw the situation as it should have declared itself before and she despised herself. What was she doing here? The thought of Tempest came to her with so much anguish, so piercing was her knowledge of how much she loved him, that she bit her lips, felt her cheeks burn with shame, and sharply she turned to leave Craven forever.

Here the rustle of leaves in the terrace close at hand made her conscious of the indignity of a flight in the sight possibly of some servant to whom she was already too familiar, and as she looked for another refuge the long window of the empire room caught her attention. At sight of the room the last words of Lady Ormond came to her ears. "She would go in if it were open, leave the sonnets there on the table, and then slip away. A turn to the window knob and it yielded, and Miss Carew opened the door and stepped quickly and silently in.

At first she thought she had mistaken the room among the many windows as she looked hurriedly around for the bright, dazzling welcome of yellow color. She seemed to have been transported back to a period which, although far nearer her own time, in reality had an air more ancient than the court days of France. She was standing in the center of an octagon, old, faded room, its walls hung in shining chintz, its furniture covered with the same material, the pale color of the background softening the gay blue of the flowers and the plumage of the iridescent birds. On a mahogany table was a brass lamp under a shade with silken fringe, a work-table—open—held wools and tapestries; there was a tapestry frame by its side and a low-seated Chippendale chair. Lucy caught her breath, and almost held it lest she breathe against a spell—against an image on a glass. Across the brass fire-dog lay the red embers of a half-burned-out fire. The room was fragrant with the scent of old-time things—a past to which the wide-open flowers of the roses in the bowl by the lamp lent their fresh odor of a day. Nothing in the world could have spoken so tenderly to the aching heart of Lucy Carew as this changed room, altered in her absence by the lonely man who had tried to win back to him his past, and to efface from between himself and the woman he loved memories that might do her wrong.

The sonnets were in her hand. Could she leave them here and go? Could she leave him a prey to a future she did not dare to picture for any human creature—still less for Tempest whom she loved?

With the transformation around her, the influence of the old-fashioned room, Lady Ormond's impression ceased to dominate. When in another minute she heard Tempest's step in the hall and his voice she waited for him breathless, with a beating heart in which there was but one feeling. He opened the door and slowly came the house bore this woman's stamp. In. As he did not speak and his eyes were on her, she spoke quickly:

"Mr. Tempest."

He gave a cry and started forward. "Stand still," he said, eagerly. "Don't move. I hear you—let me feel my way to you."

Her heart seemed to stop beating. "Speak again."

"Mr. Tempest."

As he touched her hand, then her arm, his grasp folded on it, and he held her with a grip of iron and looked down into her face:

"Is the room pitch dark?"

"No," she replied, steadying her voice, "it is a gloomy day, but not quite dark."

"Not quite dark," he repeated. "No, for I can see you still! come to the window, please." He drew her there and turned her face with both hands up to what light there was. His close bending to her, the intensity of his face, its passion and suffering, over which love rode like a king, transfixed the girl, who lifted her own swimming eyes and trembling lips in compassion, looking at him in turn as if she would aid his sight, of her own free will stamp her features on his falling vision.

"That lovely hair!" he touched it. "It has light all along it like sun in the reeds—on the leaves; it can hold the light so, dearest. Why can't my eyes? Those lovely eyes! Sometimes I think they are wells where all the light is held in inexhaustible depths. I would drain them dry. Those lovely lips! I have no likeness for them. I only know mine long for them. I have looked at you often enough, God knows, and yet to-day I feel I have never seen you before. Because I am losing you, I shall soon have only remembrance to feed upon."

"Lose me? Oh, why?" she whispered, and unable to control her emotion hid her face on his breast.

"Don't cry so, don't, Lucy." After a few minutes, in which he soothed her tenderly, she mastered herself and, withdrawing a little, laid her cool palms against his eyelids:

"You need never lose me unless you wish."

"My God!" he said, passionately, "why have I been tempted like this? Why, it's a crime to take you, Lucy, darling."

"You don't love me," she said, simply, "or you would not think it; you don't want me, or you couldn't feel it."

"Want you?" He laughed. "Haven't I proved it? Must I kiss you again and crush you as I could to prove how one you are with me? Don't you know!"

She blushed crimson.

"I am a wreck—a crippled creature."

"Hush!" she pleaded. "I only want to be sure of one thing. Do you—love me?"

Tempest kissed her. "I don't think that's the word!"

"Ah!" she said, softly, "it's a good one, and enough to keep me with!" She drew the hand she held against her heart.

"You don't realize, my darling," he said, "that I am going blind. I shall be as blind as sleep."

With great sweetness she asked: "Would you think it a lovely dream to find me always in that sleep?"

He answered her without words—touched by the delicacy of her thought.

Against the arm she leaned were the marks of the temptation to which he had yielded in moments of supreme suffering. Should he tell her? The habit, begun before she came to him, had been ever since her advent entirely under control. It could never tempt him now again. Why should he tell her, and cause her added grief, since he could not—would not—let her go? She must share his lot, it was her fate.

But he said: "You will save me, Lucy?"

"I will love you, Basil."

"You will save me so."

As he held her, so tenacious is the woman of her points that, as Lady Ormond's brilliant figure flashed across Lucy Carew's mind she whispered her name.

"And I shall fear every woman now!"

Tempest laughed. "You needn't; I think I have loved you all my life—you in other women—and now all women in you."

"This sweet, dear woman, Basil!"

"Ah, you like it? I couldn't think of anything else to do in those horrible days when you kept me waiting, so I transformed it. I have dreamed of seeing you here—my love—my wife—in a dozen different pictures, but never of finding you like this."

She told him how she had come and of her meeting with Lady Ormond. "I was jealous of her—even that night here."

"I knew it," he laughed. "Oh," she exclaimed, chagrined, "how did you?"

"I hoped it, at all events, and that's why I burned her picture before you—so that she, at least, shouldn't be between us."

"You cared—then—for me?"

"Then? I cared the night you came in your little, wet shoes. I could have kept you then, with no further words, no parting, and never let you go. I love like that," he said.

She drew a little from him. "How well you know how you love, Basil!"

He held her by force, drawing her until her lips were on his.

"Yes," he murmured, "how well I know."

It was past the luncheon hour when Mrs. Henly, who had wandered the house over for her master, gently opened the morning-room door. At first she distinguished nothing in the somber room where across the window the mists blew a gray curtain.

Then she saw Tempest standing with a slender, dark lady by his side. They were talking earnestly and did not hear her come in. She waited a minute in the shadow, her loving eyes on his transfigured face. The desert old room had taken its aforesaid form, once more.

"Give me back my blue chintz walls and my old-fashioned furniture," she had said to Miss Carew, and back again they were, as though the fairy wand the girl had brought had recalled them. Tempest, thus surrounded, seemed to have found his youth again. His face, as she could see it bending to the woman's before him, was radiant. He was smiling, and in the picture he made to the eyes of the old creature who had mothered him, she forgot the blight, and malediction, and only saw the wonder of the love that should be eyes and light for Basil Tempest, and holding him divinely by the hand should lead him softly all his days.

THE END.

Navel Oranges 350 Years Ago.

The first we know of the navel orange, which is very valuable not only on account of its fine quality and taste, but also because of its being seedless, is of a single tree that was found growing on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea. This was about the year 1565, or nearly 350 years ago.

A monk in a monastery in that far-away country painted a picture of the fruit and wrote a description of it, both of which may be seen in the library of the Roman Catholic university at Washington. Grafts of this tree were taken to Spain, and from Spain the trees were carried to South America by the Spaniards.—St. Nicholas.

An Ink Point.

A girl bookkeeper displayed fingers black and unsightly with ink stains.

"Now look," she said.

And, dipping her fingers in water, she rubbed the head of a match over them. The result was magical. The sulphur removed the stains as easily as a dust cloth removes dust.

"Isn't that a good idea?" she said.

"A chemist taught it me. Thanks to it, I never have to go home with ink fingers."

Clever.

"She insists that her paternal ancestor came over on the Mayflower."

"But I thought they proved to her that there was no such name on the Mayflower register?"

"They did. And now she says he was a stowaway."

TAFT DEFENDS SUPREME COURT

CALLS "DEMAGOGIC CANT" PERIL AND ASKS SQUARE DEAL.

Declares Highest Tribunal Does Not Favor Corporations and Takes Bryan to Task.

St. Louis. — President Taft gave a vigorous denunciation of William J. Bryan for the latter's criticism of the appointment of Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York as associate justice of the United States Supreme court. Mr. Taft decried the "cant of the demagogue" and the "disposition of public journals" to make unjust charges against men in public life.

"All I am speaking for is justice and a square deal," he said, "not especially for myself, for, indeed, I am in a position where I can get along better than some of the rest without it. But I am appealing for justice in dealing with all classes."

Mr. Taft was speaking at a luncheon given by the Business Men's league. The president's reception here developed the greatest enthusiasm that has been displayed toward him on the present trip. A great crowd welcomed him on his arrival in the Union station and the street was well lined with cheering and flag-waving enthusiasts as he was driven to the St. Louis club, where he was entertained at breakfast.

From the club the president went to the Coliseum, where he addressed a not particularly enthusiastic gathering of farmers, who half filled the hall.

A luncheon at the Southern hotel followed, after which the automobile procession, with the president at its head, proceeded first to the National league grounds, where the Cardinals were pitted against Cincinnati, and afterward to the American league grounds, where the Browns were engaged in a contest with the Clevelanders. Only a short time was spent at each park.

HEARST SUES WATTERSON

Enters Action for Damages for $200,000. Against Courier-Journal and Its Publisher.

Louisville, Ky.—Through Leon P. Lewis, a local attorney, William Randolph Hearst Friday entered suit in the federal court against Henry Watterson individually, for $100,000, and the Courier-Journal for the same sum.

The suit against Mr. Watterson is based on his editorial of April 30, which, according to the petition, applauded the attack made on Mr. Hearst by Mayor Gaynor at the Press banquet in New York and "accepting as proven Gaynor's charges." The action against the Courier-Journal is in two suits, one for $50,000 for publishing a headline reading: "Hearst Guilty of a Penal Offense."

DYNAMITE BLASTS KILL NINE

Several Persons Are Missing and Many Hurt as Result of Explosion at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ont.—Nine people are dead, several are missing and many others injured as a result of an explosion Sunday in the dynamite works in Hull, across the river from here. The outbuildings of the explosive factory caught fire and the detonators exploded when the flames reached them. Thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done by the smashing of uplate glass windows.

Helen M. Barker Dead.

Chicago.—Mrs. Helen M. Barker, one of America's foremost advocates of temperance, and for 12 years national treasurer of the W. C. T. U., died at the Hinsdale sanitarium Saturday. She was seventy-five years of age. She was taken ill with the grip a week ago.

New York.—Succumbing to the infirmities of age after a long illness, Mrs. Ellen G. Mead Howells, the novelist, died at her home Saturday.

LIE IS GIVEN TO GARFIELD

Ballinger Tells Committee His Precursor Made Unfair and False Statement to President.

Washington. — "It was not a fair or truthful statement," exclaimed Secretary Ballinger during the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, referring to a sentence in former Secretary Garfield's letter to the president last November, which read:

"He (Ballinger) directed the reclamation service to prepare lists for restoring the withdrawn lands, but to do so slowly in order not to attract public attention."

Mr. Ballinger said that all the lands actually had been restored within a period of three weeks.

Mr. Ballinger again denied that he had ordered or directed, as testified by Mr. Newell and Mr. Davis, that the reclamation service should recommend the restoration of power sites withdrawn under Garfield.

Mr. Ballinger said that since Pinchot's dismissal there had been a reversal of the policy of the forestry bureau, which held full sway when Pinchot was in charge.

Secretary Ballinger read to the committee a letter received from the president last September in which Mr. Taft said the weakness of Pinchot lay in "his inability to credit high and honorable motives to those who differ with him as to his method of doing things."

FORT REFUSES TO EXTRADITE

Governor Decides Armour Is Not Fugitive From Justice—Will Not Issue Requisition.

Trenton, N. J.—Deciding that J. Ogden Armour, the Chicago packer, is not a fugitive from justice, Governor Fort Saturday announced his refusal to issue a requisition upon the governor of Illinois for his extradition to answer the indictment found against him by the Hudson county grand jury.

Governor Fort points out that in order for extradition papers to be asked for it was necessary that the person whose extradition was desired be a fugitive from justice and, further, that it was essential that the accused person was in fact in the state of New Jersey at the time of the commission of the alleged offense.

ROCKEFELLER STORY DENIED

Starr J. Murphy Declares Standard Oil President Has Not Abandoned Foundation Plans.

New York.—A press dispatch from Washington announced that John D. Rockefeller had abandoned the idea of securing a national charter for his proposed foundation. Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for Mr. Rockefeller, and speaking for the Standard Oil president, said the statement was entirely without foundation. Mr. Murphy also said that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "Economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York legislature for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend on charity.

Whole Country Is Stirred.

One of the most interesting reports at the recent meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was that of the executive secretary, Dr. Livingston Farrand, showing the growth of the anti-tuberculosis movement since May 1, 1909. The number of associations for the prevention of consumption has increased from 290 to over 425; the number of sanatoria and hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis is from 298 to 400; and the special tuberculosis dispensaries from 222 to 265. During the year 1909, thirty-six out of forty-three legislatures in session considered the subject of tuberculosis, and in 28, bills were passed for the prevention or treatment of this disease. Since the opening of the legislative season of 1910, out of ten legislatures in session up to May 1, all have considered the subject of tuberculosis and every one of them has enacted some law that bears on this subject.

Inside and Out.

Speaker Cannon at a dinner in Washington, said, soothingly, to a young suffragette:

"After all, you know, there is room for both men and women in this world. Men have their work to do and women have theirs."

"It is the woman's work to provide for the inner man, and it is the man's to provide for the outer woman."

None.

ROUGH ON WOMEN TRAVELERS

Country Visitor to City Saw at Once Disadvantages of Subway Entrances.

A genial Joshua, who runs a chicken plantation and cornstalk refinery down in the Salem county section of Jersey, came to this city the other day to buy a pair of winter boots and a box of axle grease, says the Philadelphia Telegraph. After rambling around in the ferry zone for a while he bravely cut loose and started up Market street.

He had not proceeded far when he saw an employee of the Philadelphia Electric Company lift the lid of a manhole and crawl down into the conduit chamber. Evidently the sight filled Joshua with much thought, for he gazed earnestly toward the manhole for a minute or two and then went over to a cop who was holding fast to a sunny spot on the corner.

"Excuse me, constable," said Joshua, addressing the police person, "but hain't they got a railroad down in the ground under this street?"

"They certainly have," indulgently answered the officer. "It is the subway."

"That's what they told me," responded the farmer, with another glance toward the center of the street, "but I hain't never seen it. Howsomever, I jes' seen a feller crawlin' down ter ketch a train, an' sez I to meself, them holes may be all right for their men passengers, but they must me mighty derned inconvenient for the women folks."

Houses of Corncocks.

In certain parts of Europe corncocks are utilized for building purposes. The cocks are taken to a factory, where heavy compresses crush and mold them into blocks of various sizes, just as bricks are variously molded. These blocks are then bound with wire so as to make them hold together. They are then soaked in tar in order that they may be watertight, and after this last operation, they are ready for the market.

This product is, of course, much lighter than brick; and they are always dry, which cannot be said of the brick. It is said that the corncock construction affords a good house for the poorer class.

Boston's Best Bet.

A Boston lady who found herself trying to eat stones when she thought she was eating bread, and who incidentally broke one good tooth and a set of false ones, is suing the baker for damages. His defense is contributory negligence because the stone was larger than the size of a piece of bread which a lady should put in her mouth. "It all goes to show that Bostonians ought to stick to beans."—From the Charleston News and Courier.

Points of View.

"Does your wife object to late dinners?" "It all depends," said Mr. Moeckton, "on whether the cause is a baseball game or a matinee."

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

Vision of What May Come to Pass in the Rearrangement of Existing Conditions.

The man of the future sat patiently darning the family socks. From time to time his mild blue eyes glanced wearily round at the pile of mending at his elbow, and he sighed as he thought of Murphy, the raw Irishman, who needed incessant instruction in the most elementary details of the culinary art. Two noisy, sturdy girls romped tom-girlishly about the room, aggravating his headache, while their gentle little brother sat quietly by his father's side, studying pictures in an old book of bygone fashions, which appealed naturally to the domestic instinct of the little man.

"Look, father," he murmured, pointing to an old print of the year 1909. "See what queer clothing that man has on. What are they? Did men really wear these, then?"

"Yes, dear," replied his father, laying down his needle for a moment and bending over the page. "I never saw any, but father once told me that grandfather wore them when he was a boy. They called them trousers!"—Tit-Bits.

Bees and Fruit.

An insufficient supply of bees will hinder the setting of fruit. While other insects may take a part in the carrying of pollen, the fruit raiser must rely chiefly upon honey bees. Experience shows that, though bees may fly two or three miles, hives should be within half a mile of the orchard or small fruit patch.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

ORDERING SUPPLIES by TELEPHONE

THE retail merchant's telephone serves not only as a salesman, but also as purchasing agent.

When a merchant finds that he is going to run out of a line of goods, he calls up the wholesaler or factory and not only orders a new stock, but comes to an agreement on the price and the time of delivery.

The unexpected needs of his customers can be met with the least possible delay.

If the merchant cannot find what he wants in town, the Long Distance Service of the Bell System brings him into immediate communication with other cities and other markets.

THE ANTIOCH NEWS.
ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS.A REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
A. B. JOHNSON, Editor and Proprietor

By Mail, One Dollar per Year, in Advance

Telephone, Antioch No. 581.

THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1910

Halley's comet has been seen in Waukegan. It will be Libertyville next.

Congressman Foss in an interview at Washington says "no one offered to sell me the senatorship." To those who know our representative, that doesn't mean he would buy it if any one did.

An Italian in Milwaukee, the other day, was refused his naturalization papers because he said he thought LaFollette was president. In Washington he might have been hanged for the offense. The dago is lucky.

Lake county's senator, Mr. Olson of Woodstock will not go before the grand jury in Chicago. He failed to vote for Lorimer, likewise he never heard of a jack-pot. They have got no use for him—that is the grand jury.

President Taft in his St. Louis speech handed Bryan one in the refusal of the latter to endorse Hughes' nomination for the supreme bench. If we remember rightly this is not the first one handed Mr. Bryan by the gentleman afore-said.

Why give ear to the alarmist? Milwaukee has now been under the rule of the socialists for several weeks and we understand the output of the breweries is still absolutely normal. But wait until the end of the month when the socialists draw their salaries!

Some of the Illinois newspapers, just now, are making much that the late King Edward of England once visited Dwight, Illinois. No, my dear Hibernian friend, it was not for the liquor habit—he was only down there to shoot a few ducks, away back in his callow days.

There seems to be a hot time in old Waukegan now a days. One of the daily papers is running a guessing contest on the local census returns and the other doughty sheet has a "are you in favor of female suffrage" quiz for its readers. How lucky we are still Antioch.

It is understood that the Chicago Tribune is now going to secure the newspaper vote of the entire English speaking world as to whether it isn't the greatest newspaper in Christendom, or not. We insist the International Harvester company should have no vote in so crucial a contest.

A Peoria newspaper has modestly suggested that Governor Deneen would make a second Abe Lincoln if given half a chance. We will wait until we hear more of the specifications before we sew ourselves absolutely to this forceful idea. And all this with no reflection on Governor Deneen.

Its the unexpected that happens. People who thought that never again would anything be heard of Ex-Senator "Billie" Mason have got a shock. He comes out at an angle that makes the jolt worse. He has written a book. The title is "John, the Unafraid." With "John" and "Billie" both unafraid there ought to be no worry about the critics.

Millburn and Salem are getting into the big metropolitan papers again. Hamlin Garland, the celebrated novelist, formerly of Salem has written a new book and the widow of "Silent" Smith is to marry a noble in London. "Silent" Smith inherited the millions of old George Smith, once one of the pioneer residents of Millburn. You can't lose us around here, go where you will.

McHenry county's share in the appropriation of the tax if the $20,000,000 waterway appropriation sticks will be something like $150,000, according to Speaker Shurtleff. On this basis Lake county's tax payers will have to come up with almost twice that amount. Let us hold communion together, we who live this side of the Fox river, and see if the game is going to pay us for the candle.

That is a powerful arrangement of the waterways proposition that appears in the Marengo Republican by Mr. Shurtleff. We respectfully call Gov. Deneen's attention to the points therein suggested. The question is a live one, possibly the most vital one before the next Illinois assembly and it behooves every citizen to get wise and learn everything that may be offered, pro and con in this matter.

Is It Shot Full of Holes?

The railroad bill at Washington is certainly having a merry go round of it to say the least. The amendments from the Aldrich point of view are a questionable compromise. And again, these same amendments from the Cummings' position are equally insufficient as a compromise. To the ordinary man from a distance who is perched on the highest branch of a tree it looks as if this much abused compromise might be a fair thing, or at any rate all that it is possible to get in the way of bringing the railroads to their milk, just at this time. With pooling and the merger idea cut out it seems as if all of the alleged jokers had been eliminated. The rest of the bill certainly works for the people at large. Let us take what we can get now and wait for the next chance. The complained of holes in the bill appear rather as plugs to prevent a possible leakage.

And Still They Come

Something has been doing, after a lull, in the state legislative contest. Former Mayor D. H. Jackson of Lake Forest has announced his intention of putting his claims up to the people of this district as to why they should elect him in preference to Mr. Stearns of Waukegan or any other contestant for the berth at Springfield.

He is not new to the game as he made the run two years ago and a good run it was too. The fight this fall is certainly going to be a good one. Mr. Jackson makes the fourth candidate in the field and there is still lots of time for the bug to work yet. Lake is a big county, its depths can not be sounded in a season and if the bug is a good diver it may bring up half a dozen more good things to puzzle the poor voter, before even the hot weather sets in.

There are momentous matters to settle in the next session of the legislature and the honest citizen will do well to consider when he comes to the primary.

There are numerous uses of electricity which are peculiarly adapted to that season of the year. For example: your porch in summer is an out-door room.

A Porch Light

is necessary to complete this phase of its character. Such a porch light as would be suitable could be operated three hours for a cent. Your friends, when they call, like to wander over your grounds. They find the back yard, which is often a pretty garden, too dark.

A Backyard Lamp

fixed on a pole would entirely alter this condition and besides would illuminate the adjoining yards as well. It is incidentally one of the best protections against burglars. Such a lamp would be inexpensive to operate and the cost might be shared by your neighbors who are equal beneficiaries.

Electric Fans

These most useful devices that mitigate the suffering of the hottest day can be had in infinite variety. The cost of operating any is trivial. Summer is particularly in the season when the great merits of the

are demonstrated. Consider the spectacle of a person performing the labor of ironing on a hot day in a kitchen with the ordinary implement. In the course of two hours the temperature of the room has risen to 110 degrees, and the worker is exhausted. With an electric iron one may iron on the porch or on the lawn and no more than this need be said. Three cents will keep an electric iron hot for an hour. Laundry work is tremendously hard work always and particularly so in the heat of summer. An reduces the labor almost to that of mere watchfulness. Two cents will operate a washing machine an hour. Of all the electrical devices that the genius of invention has created none is more useful than the

Sewing Machine Motor

It runs the machine in response to the pressure of a button. This little motor has been brought to a high state of perfection and has earned for itself a high place among the essentials of comfort in the home in summer. One cent will operate this motor for an hour.

Electric Light

the finest of all illuminations, of course, needs but little reference here in its relation as a summer light. It is unapproachable. Let our representative describe numerous other features of our service and show you that ELECTRICITY in the Home is a luxury in all respects except cost.

L. B. Grice met with quite a serious accident Saturday morning of last week which very near caused him the loss of one eye. While assisting the workmen in laying the hard-wood floor in the flat over the postoffice, he struck a nail rather hard blow with the hammer, with the result that instead of the nail being driven into the hard wood it bounded backward and striking Mr. Grice a glancing blow inflicted a three cornered wound in the iris of his right eye, escaping the pupil by a hair's breadth. A physician was summoned at once and pronounced it a case where in the services of a specialist was necessary. He was hurried on the eleven o'clock train to Chicago, where he had the injured member examined and treated. At his last visit to the specialist Mr. Grice was given encouragement to believe that his sight would not be impaired by the accident.

CAREER OF EDWARD VII., KING OF GREAT BRITAIN

London.—Edward VII., king of the English, died at 11:45 o'clock Friday night. The prince of Wales is king, assuming the title of George V., and took the oath before the privy council Saturday afternoon. Coming so suddenly, the death of the king cannot but bring greatest sorrow to the nation, in whose hearts Edward, first as prince of Wales and afterwards as sovereign, held first place.

Edward VII.'s short reign of nine years has been a history of stirring times. It opened with the conclusion of peace after a long and trying campaign in South Africa, and concludes at the critical moment of one of the momentous political struggles of modern times between the peers and commons. In a day the political outlook of Great Britain has been revolutionized.

Death Due to Pneumonia.

Gathered around the bedside of the dying king was the queen and princesses. No hope had been held out throughout the day for the recovery of his majesty, whose death, it is believed, was due to pneumonia, following bronchitis, contracted shortly after his return from Biarritz.

Only a day or two ago the king was conducting the business of state and giving audiences, but on Wednesday he was compelled to submit to the orders of his physicians. Since then until the end his decline was rapid.

New King's First Act.

The first official act of the new king was to dispatch to the lord mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom. His telegram read:

"I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the king, passed away peacefully at 11:45 to-night. GEORGE."

The physicians soon afterwards issued their official bulletin, which was as follows:

"May 6, 11:50 p. m.—His majesty, the king, breathed his last at 11:45 tonight in the presence of her majesty, Queen Alexandra, the prince and princess of Wales, princess royal, the duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the duchess of Argyll. (Signed) "LAKING, "REID, "POWELL, "DAWSON."

Pneumonia, following bronchitis, is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors refused to make a statement. Some of the late king's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situation which confronted him with sleepless nights aggravated, if it did not cause, the fatal illness.

Within a few minutes after the death of the king the home office was telegraphing the intelligence to the heads of other governments and the British diplomats and colonial officials throughout the world.

Expected Sudden End.

All who knew the king expected his death would be sudden, and it would not have occasioned great surprise if it had occurred without warning, at some social functions, as a result of heart trouble.

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty."

He seemed then to have reached a full realization that death was approaching.

Friday, May 20, has been definitely fixed as the date for King Edward's funeral. It will be held at Windsor and the body will lie in state in Westminster hall for three days preceding the funeral. The body will be placed in St. George's chapel.

Immediately after the funeral of her husband it is expected that Queen Alexandra, now the queen mother, will retire to Sandringham palace, which King Edward some years ago made over to her as a dower house.

With the time-honored ceremony of a brilliant and impressive character, George V. Monday was publicly proclaimed king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, defender of the faith, emperor of India.

Sharply at the stroke of nine, four heralds arrayed in medieval uniforms of scarlet, heavily braided with gold, mounted the balcony of Friary court, at St. James' palace, where Queen Victoria presented herself to the people upon the opening of her memorable reign, and blew a fanfare through their long silver trumpets.

The precincts of the palace by this time were a great mass of people, many of whom could get but the briefest glimpse of the proceedings. The balconies and roofs of the ancient palace, which had been draped with red cloth, were reserved for the notables, all of whom were in the deepest mourning.

Members of the royal household, the ministers and their wives and high officers of state, all in brilliant uniforms, were gathered around the court. Gen. Sir John D. P. French, with the headquarters staff in full dress uniform, stood surrounded by a troop of horse guards. From the windows of Marlborough house, immediately opposite the palace, the duke of Cornwall, the young heir to the throne, the younger prince and Princess Mary watched the ceremony.

The last note had hardly died away when the band of the Coldstream guards, which had taken up a position in the square, struck up "God Save the King."

As the national anthem was finished the first gun of the battery in St. James' park sounded a royal salute and the people in the square and streets at the same moment took up the refrain, "God Save the King."

This was probably the most impressive part of the ceremony.

England's dead king, Edward VII., whose full title was "king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of all the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India," was the eldest son and the second child of Queen Victoria and Albert, the prince consort. He was born November 9, 1841, in Buckingham palace and was christened Albert Edward.

At his birth he was created prince of Wales and by virtue of that dignity he became also knight of the garter. As heir apparent to the British throne he succeeded to the title of duke of Cornwall and its emoluments, and as heir to the crown of Scotland he became great steward of Scotland, duke of Rothesay, earl of Carrick, earl of Renfrew and lord of the Isles. (On September 10, 1849, he was created earl of Dublin, this title being conferred on him and his heirs in perpetuity. Among the other titles and commands held by Edward were duke of Saxony, colonel of the Tenth hussars, colonel-in-chief of the Rifle brigade, field marshal of the British army and field marshal of the German army.

The prince received a most elaborate, broad and carefully planned education. At first he was under the charge of four private tutors, and subsequently his education was directed by Baron Stockmar and Charles Kingsley. In order to give him a taste of college life, he was sent for one session to the University of Edinburgh, for one year to Oxford and for four terms to Cambridge. During these years he acquired a wide general knowledge of the arts and sciences and became quite proficient in modern languages.

In 1860 the prince made a tour of the United States and Canada and the next year he joined the British army at Curragh camp, Ireland. In 1862 he set out on his travels again, this time visiting Jerusalem and other places of biblical interest. His companion on the trip was Dean Stanley of Westminster.

Edward's public life began in February, 1863, when, as heir to the throne, he took his seat in the house of lords. On March 10 of the same year he married Princess Alexandra Caroline Mary Charlotte Louise Julia, the eldest daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark. Her beauty, grace and charming manners at once gave her a popularity in Great Britain that has continued unaltered throughout her life as princess and queen. In 1876-78 the prince made an extended tour through the Indian empire and was received everywhere with lavish and magnificent hospitality, the native rulers seeking to outdo one another in the gorgeousness of the entertainments provided for the emperor.

On the death of Queen Victoria, January 22, 1901, Edward succeeded to the throne. The coronation was set for June 26, 1902, and all preparations for the magnificent event had been completed when disquieting rumors of the king's ill health, which had been current for several days, were confirmed by the postponement of the ceremony. It was announced that the king was suffering from peritphilitis, and on June 24 he underwent an operation. After some weeks of the greatest anxiety, he recovered, and the coronation took place August 9.

During the long years of his principality Edward's public duties consisted solely in the office of representing the royal family at all manner of public events, and he performed these duties well. But the deadly monotony of such a life was too much for the vigorous man, and he found relaxation in amusements that frequently gave rise to scandals and that gave the world a wrong impression of his real character. He was especially fond of the theater and among his boon companions for years were actresses and actors. Also he developed a great liking for Paris and often visited that gay capital incognito. The Riviera and Biarritz likewise were familiar with the face of the prince of Wales.

As a diplomat Edward was unexcelled among the monarchs of Europe. His influence was always thrown to the side of international peace where compatible with national honor, and his advice and example had a steady effect on all Europe. He looked with amused tolerance on the vagaries and extravagances of his nephews, the emperor of Germany, but occasionally that ruler exasperated him to such an extent that he could not refrain from giving him some stern advice. Such admonition was not received by William in a submissive spirit, and once in a while there were sensational rumors that the peaceful relations between the two countries were about to be ruptured.

The development of the king's character in his later years was especially gratifying to the nation. In addition to the love of his people, which he had always had, he gained their admiration and respect. They had the utmost confidence in his good judgment, as was amply exemplified during the late crisis over the budget, and they were always sure he would do the right thing at the right time.

To Edward and Alexandra were born six children. The first, Prince Albert, duke of Clarence, died in 1892, aged twenty-eight years. The second, George Frederick Ernest Albert, born on June 3, 1865, succeeds to the throne. The other children are: Princess Louise Victoria, married to the duke of Fife; Princess Victoria Alexandra; Princess Maude Charlotte, married to Prince Charles of Denmark, and Prince Alexander John, who died the day after his birth in 1871.

Enthusiastic Lover of Horses.

Edward VII. was an enthusiastic lover of horses and the most noted royal turfman of the world. Horse racing as a sport owes much to him. He maintained a large racing stable and competed at all the larger programs held in England. His track ambition was achieved in 1909, when his horse Minoru won the English Derby, defeating Sir Martin, an American colt. As Prince of Wales he had twice won the Derby, but as king he was successful last year for the first time.

King Edward's interest in horses was not confined to races. He maintained two establishments where he raised high-class horses and by accepting offices in breeders' societies and offering prizes at shows encouraged the raising of improved stock. While the world was anxiously awaiting news of the king's condition shortly before his death occurred, his 2-year-old filly, Witch, was winning the spring plate at Kempton park. As the horse flashed under the wire the band played "God Save the King" and the crowd, rising to its feet, caught up the song and swelled it to a great chorus. It was an impressive demonstration and will long be remembered.

Rev. Lapley Suffered Twelve Years From It—How He Conquered It; You Also Can, Free.

Through an announcement that he saw in his local paper the Rev. J. D. Lapley of Avondale Station, Birmingham, Ala., learned that he could obtain a free trial bottle of a remedy for the cure of indigestion, and as he was interested, because he suffered from that ailment, he wrote for it. The remedy was Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Lapley, who is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a member of the Central Alabama Conference, is a cured patient, as presented herewith. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand write the doctor and he will advise you. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Fool Remarks. "The inanity of courtesy remarks that some people feel called upon to interject into conversation calls for a permanent commission in lunacy," said the man with the ingrowing grouch. Findings of Fresh-Water Eel.

The straits of Messina are channels of immense depth, through which a wild form of whirling eddies have the effect of bringing up from the depths below many marine creatures which are rarely seen except in the deep sea trawls. It was here that the fresh-water eel was first discovered, an incident which threw a blaze of light on the life history of a very mysterious fish.—London Daily Telegraph.

Tilt for Tat.

Stranger (to prominent clergyman)—I came in here, sir, to criticize your church management and tell you how it ought to be run.

Prominent Clergyman (amazed)—What do you mean, sir? How dare you? Who are you, anyway? "I am the humble editor of the paper you have been writing to."—Life.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the United States, for the climate is better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the surplus. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel, 1800 miles north of the International boundary. Your vacant land is better than any in the United States, and you have a ready market for the surplus. 70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1000 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports were an immense item. Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and stock raising are the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and other agencies, will provide homes for millions of Americans. Write to-day for a free trial package. JURY HOLDS THREE

Illinois Legislators Charged With Bribery and Perjury.

OTHERS MAY BE DRAWN IN

Representatives Lee O'Neill Browne, Robert E. Wilson and Michael S. Link Are the Men in the Tolls of the Law.

Chicago.—Self-confessed bribe taker No. 3—Representative Michael S. Link, who for two days had persisted in denial of participation in legislative corruption as previously recited under oath by Representative Charles A. White and H. C. J. Beckemeyer—went before the grand jury Saturday, purged himself of perjury by retracting his former statements, and made the following admissions:

That he entered into an agreement to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator in return for a promise of $1,000.

That he did so vote and was paid the stipulated $1,000 in St. Louis personally by Representative Lee O'Neill Browne, leader of the Democratic minority in the house.

That later on July 15 last he was at the Southern hotel in St. Louis and there did receive from Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago $900 as his share of the "jack pot" or legislative "slush fund."

Robert E. Wilson.

Three Indictments Returned. Late Friday the special grand jury returned three indictments in the legislative bribery scandal as follows:

Representative Lee O'Neill Browne of Ottawa, leader of the Democratic minority in the house, accused of bribery on June 16 last in the alleged payment of $850 to Representative Charles A. White at the Briggs house in Chicago for White's vote on a contract and for his vote for William Lorimer as United States senator.

Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago, Democrat, accused of falsely testifying before the Cook county grand jury that he did not pay $900 each to Representative White and H. C. J. Beckemeyer at the Southern hotel in St. Louis on July 15 last as their respective shares in the legislative "jack pot."

Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell, Democrat, accused of falsely testifying under oath before the grand jury that he was not in the Southern hotel at St. Louis on the day when Representatives White, Beckemeyer and Wilson testified he was present, being the occasion when White and Beckemeyer alleged the "jack pot" of $900 apiece was distributed by Wilson as the deputy agent of Representative Browne.

Penalties as provided by statute are imprisonment in the state penitentiary for from one to fourteen years on conviction for perjury and from one to five years imprisonment in the penitentiary on conviction for bribery.

Ball in all three cases was fixed at $15,000 each. Capias were ordered issued at once.

Link Makes "Clean Breast." In immediate sequence to Legislator Link's "clean breast" of his bribe taking, the indictment accusing him of perjury was "nolled" by Judge Kersten on the request of State's Attorney Wayman, who in explanation informed the jurist that the defendant had retracted and thereby purged himself.

The move left Link in the same classification as White and Beckemeyer as beneficiaries of leniency, none of the three being under indictment. For the first time in three days Link left the criminal court building unattended by a detective and was allowed to go to his residence after promising to return if he

Link Outlines Agreement. Link was hurried to the grand jury rooms early in the morning by the secret elevator from the offices of State's Attorney Wayman after he had made a preliminary confession to Wayman and had been told that if he would tell all he would be given immunity on the perjury indictment. Link's confession touched directly on the Lorimer purchase of the senatorial seat and uncovered new angles of the state-wide corruption in which it is charged Democratic assemblymen sold their political birthrights.

New names of legislators who were interested in the Lorimer senatorial election also have been learned through the confessions of Link and Beckemeyer, whose stories corroborate in detail the original confession of Representative White.

Bomb to Browne and Wilson.

Link's confession came as a bombshell to Browne and Wilson, the men who it is alleged distributed the senatorial election bribes and the "jack pot" money, so far as these moneys appertained to the Democratic end of the bipartisan deal.

Browne and Wilson appeared at the criminal court building to furnish bonds on their indictments, returned Friday evening, just as the news of Link's confession came from the grand jury chambers.

Both plainly were worried, but Wilson seemed less concerned than the Ottawa legislator.

Both Browne and Wilson presented the same bondsmen, as follows: "Johnnie" Powers, alderman of the Nineteenth ward, former state senator.

John J. Brennan, alderman of the Eighteenth ward.

In addition to these two Wilson's bond was signed by his brother-in-law, Francis J. Casey.

Tells of Primary Bribe Offer.

Second only in importance to the indictments themselves was the unexpected and volunteered statement by Representative Joseph S. Clark that he had been offered a $500 bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in the Forty-fifth general assembly.

His statement came in an outburst of wrath when, following the indictments of his fellow legislators, he was again questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Arnold as to matters he had testified to before the grand jury.

"Twenty-five $20 bills were counted out before me in my room," said Mr. Clark, "and I was told they were mine if I would agree to vote against the pending direct primary bill. I refused and voted for the bill, as the records will show."

First Public Declaration.

This statement, advanced by Clark to demonstrate his claim of probity at Springfield, is the first public declaration that bribery was attempted in 1907 to defeat direct primary legislation. There was some gossip of money at the time, but it received little credence, because it was not supposed "special interests" or politicians had been organized or solicited to contribute to such a defensive fund.

"Yes," said Mr. Clark after he had emerged from this ordeal with Assistant State's Attorney Arnold, "I did say that I had been offered a bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in 1907, but I do not care to have that statement published. The matter is now old and I merely mentioned it to show how I could have made money had I been so disposed at Springfield while a member of the legislature."

Lorimer Has Nothing to Say.

Senator Lorimer was told of the indictments while in the office of his new bank, the La Salle National, in the Rookery building.

M. S. Link.

"Browne and Wilson have been indicted," he was told, "and so was Link."

"What," exclaimed the senator, "who in heaven's name were the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury in Browne's and Wilson's case?"

"The two men who confessed," he was told.

"Humph," said the senator, "they were the only witnesses, were they, against these men? Well, of course, I have nothing to say."

Attorney General Stead and State's Attorney Wayman were in close conference for two hours, the understanding being that they were considering the question of jurisdiction, and perhaps the question of immunity for White and Beckemeyer, whose confessions led to the indictments.

TWO HYDE'S TESTIFY

ACCUSED PHYSICIAN AND WIFE GO ON STAND IN SWOPE CASE.

THEY MAKE GENERAL DENIAL

Woman Nearly Collapses at Outset, But Regains Composure—Proves Good Witness—Doctor Gives Prompt Answers.

Kansas City, Mo.—Dr. B. Clark Hyde, accused of the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope, began telling his story to the jury Monday, and when court adjourned he was still on the stand.

He declared that Colonel Swope died of apoplexy, asserted that he never had talked to the colonel about his will, and that he had put no germs in the candy that Stella told about his and Mrs. Hyde's refusal to eat.

Among the numerous statements made by Doctor Hyde were these:

Moss Huntton died of apoplexy; Twyman never said one word about too much blood being taken; nothing of the sort was heard until after January 12; I gave Colonel Swope a Hollidin digestive capsule; I took that medicine to the nurse, Miss Keller, the night of October 2; I warned Mrs. Swope a year and a half or two years previously not to use the clister water; Colonel Swope never spoke to me about his will; I did not know what my wife would inherit. Not until after the reading of the will did I hear the word "residuary."

Every jurymen listened as intently to the witness as they had listened for nearly five hours to Mrs. Hyde, who preceded her husband on the witness stand. After 20 minutes' questioning Doctor Hyde was rolling a handkerchief in his right hand and occasionally wiping his forehead. His answers, however, were prompt and carefully worded.

Referring to Moss Huntton and the bleeding, he declared earnestly that between two and three pints of blood were taken and that never until after January 12 did he hear a word of suspicion about the incident.

Strychnine, in Colonel Swope's condition, Doctor Hyde said, was proper. His heart needed strengthening. He ordered the nurse to give one-sixteenth of a grain and believed he probably had four or five such injections.

Mrs. Hyde made a pitiable spectacle the first few moments she was on the stand. The mention of the name of her cousin, Moss Huntton, brought tears to her eyes and she was unable to speak. It was feared she might collapse. But after sobbing for a few minutes Mrs. Hyde composed herself and she was able to proceed with her testimony. Thereafter she made a good witness, speaking distinctly and following the line of interrogation without difficulty.

COL. ROOSEVELT AT BERLIN

Former President Is Accorded Warm Welcome by Germans—Emperor Does Not Meet Him.

Berlin.—Theodore Roosevelt and family arrived here Tuesday and were given a rousing welcome. The colonel was feeling well, his attack of bronchitis having responded readily to the treatment he received from specialists in Berlin.

The party was met at the station by the American ambassador and several of the high German officials. Accepting Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion regarding changes in the program, the emperor did not meet the former president at the railway station, and will not receive him as his guest at the Berlin castle.

The party proceeded to Potsdam by automobile and had lunch with the emperor and empress, returning to the embassy in the afternoon.

Ambassador Hill's dinner will be held Wednesday and Mr. Roosevelt will deliver his lecture on Thursday at the university, the emperor attending. The former president will dine with Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg that evening. The plans for Friday and Saturday have not been changed. These include a luncheon at the embassy, where Mr. Roosevelt will meet many German leaders of science, industry and finance, a reception to representative members of the American colony, a foregathering of big game hunters and a reception to the diplomatic corps, the government officials and the university authorities.

Griscom Badly Hurt.

New York.—Friends of Lloyd C. Griscom, Republican county chairman and formerly ambassador to Italy, are worried over his condition following injuries he sustained in a motor car accident Sunday. Mr. Griscom was driving in Park avenue in his automobile with Mrs. Griscom and John Boyle, Jr., secretary of the Republican county committee, when he ran into a Fifth street trolley car. Fragments of broken glass cut Mr. Griscom's leg severely.

Two Dying as Result of Duel.

Cordoba, Ga.—Because they resented his attentions to their sister, Edward and Herbert Mercer engaged in a pistol duel in the streets Monday with Grady Snellgrove. The latter and William Benton, a bystander, were probably fatally wounded and Edward Mercer was slightly wounded.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn. If deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

Luck.

The little red man is your good-luck man; the little black man is your bad-luck man. But usually your little black man is on top of your little red man, walloping him.—Atchison Globe.

A Regular Tom Boy

was Susie—climbing trees and fences, jumping ditches, whittling, always getting scratches, cuts, sprains, bruises, bumps, burns and scalds. But laws! Her mother just applied Buckien's Arnica Salve and cured her quick. Heals everything—headache—Boils, ulcers, eczema, old sores, corns or piles. Try it. 25c. at J. H. Swans.

Cost of Progress.

For every $250,000 spent on engineering it is estimated that a man is killed.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup, and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C., "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It's a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, cold, la-grippe, asthma, hemorrhages, weak lungs. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan.
